WASHINGTON, Feb. 4 .--. (AP) - Democratic National Committee members, flocking into town for tomorrow's meeting, evinced more interest tonight in whether President Roosevelt will run again than in their task of picking a city and date for the 1940 conven-

Groups of committee members gathered in hotel lobbies to exchange information on third term sentiment in their states, and the question on every tongue was, "Do you think he will run?"

Attention Centers.

Attention centered on the filing of petitions to enter the President's name in the Illinois primary April 9. Mayor Edward J. Kelly, of Chicago, and Patrick A. Nash, the national committeeman, sponsored the petitions. Mr. Roosevelt made no comment.

"I don't know whether the President will be nettled by what has been done," Kelly remarked upon is arrival here. "But he is our only candidate and we have no second choice.

City Council Will Consider Financing Through Bonds; Water Head to Outline Need of Supply.

Possibility of a new waterworks plant, financed through a bond issue, will be discussed by city council of East Point at 7 o'clock tonight in the city hall, Major

James R. Parham said yesterday. The discussion follows a series of meetings last week between East Point, College Park and Hapeville officials who sought some co-operative arrangement whereby the three communities could erect a joint waterworks

The co-operative plan failed, is was said, because of "limited financial resources at the present time." It was agreed that East Point would consider erection of a local plant which might be able to supply water to College Park and Hapeville on a temporary

Funeral services for Mrs. Bessie Hatcher Strupper, 65, of Columbus, widow of George Everett Strupper and mother of Everett Strupper, former Georgia Tech football star, will be held at 11 o'clock this morning at St. Paul Methodist church in Columbus.

Mrs. Strunpper died at her home Saturday afternoon after an illness of less than 12 hours.

Surviving besides her son are two sisters, Mrs. Charles C. Mc-Gehee, of Atlanta, and Mrs. Lot-tie Hatcher Estes, of Columbus; a niece, Mrs. George Golden, of Co-lumbus: two nephews, Charles Mc-Ghee Jr., of Atlanta, and Ben Hatcher Swift, of Miami.

Born in Columbus August 18, 1875, Mrs. Strupper was the daughter of the late Martha Jane Estes and Benjamin T. Hatcher, pioneer citizens of Columbus. She was an active member of the St. Paul Methodist church and founder of its Mary Lewis Red

ATLANTA, GA., FEB. 5, 1940.

The Underpass Status

There is every reason to believe that, when the city and county gets together today to settle the North avenue-Marietta street underpass issue, all details will be worked out satisfactorily and by nightfall Atlantans will have the final assurance this vitally important project has been definitely started on the way to completion.

The history of this underpass project is familiar to all Atlantans.

The grade crossing is one of the most dangerous in all the south. Motorists are compelled to cross 21 railroad tracks. That is, 42 rails. There are 1.500 "units of railroad movement' over the crossing daily. Trains and locomotives in scheduled traffic and switching operations send the iron wheels clicking over that crossing 1,500 times daily.

The history of the crossing has been a tragic record of accidents, of sudden death, of grinding, wrenching agony, of sorrow, of tremendous

Four years ago the federal government, as part of its grade-crossing elimination program, set aside $485,000 for the construction of this underpass. All it asked of city and county was the necessary rights of way. At that time the cost of securing those rights of way was higher than it is today. The city, together with all the nation, was wallowing in the depths of the depression and there was no money.

Today those rights of way can be secured for not more than $135,000.

Two of the railroads involved have contributed $10,000 each. The city has set aside half of the remainder, $57,500. The county has been asked for a similar $57,500.

There has been further delay while the county had its legal department, planning commission and others re-examine every angle of the proposal. Last week the news was given out the way appeared to be clear, at last, for final agreement. A few details remain to be ironed out, and a meeting between members of the county commission, Mayor Hartsfield of the city and both governments' legal and other aides, has been set for today.

The necessity for prompt action involves not only the importance of eliminating a fearfully dangerous condition, but the probability that, if the way is not cleared for early beginning of the work, the federal government will withdraw its $485,000 offer and spend that money elsewhere. There are conditions in other places calling urgently for remedy. Atlanta cannot expect to hold that money, idle, for indefinite year after year.

Unless the county can include its share of the cost in the year's budget by March 15, the project must go over another year. Which, according to J. T. Marshall, resident engineer for Georgia of the United States Bureau of Roads, means recommendation will be made that the $485,000 be used elsewhere.

Building of the underpass will provide jobs for between 150 and 200 local workmen for from 18 months to two years. In addition to this payroll, it will involve the spending, locally, of $240,000 for stone, sand, cement and steel.

There never was a project in which the public interest was more vitally involved. There is no question of credit or discredit to anyone.

It is simply a question of providing the small sum lacking, in order that the lives which, otherwise, will inevitably be sacrificed in the future, may be saved and that the most important of all local traffic projects be promptly begun and quickly completed.

It is inconceivable to imagine there will be any further unnecessary delay. The people of Atlanta, knowing the caliber of both city and county leaders, feel confident the go-ahead signal will be given, now.

Latest illustration of man's puniness in the face of nature is the showing of Joe Stalin's inexorable legions versus the third ice age.

Necessary Investigation

Investigation is now under way in the southern states at the instance of Representative Fulmer, of South Carolina, who charged recently that farmers are "being robbed" in sale of wood to paper mills. He cited instances in which farmers of the south had received only $1 for two cords of wood, which he said is made into a ton of paper selling for $60.

This is not the first complaint. Allegations have been more or less widespread that pulp mills have been cautious in the use of owned forests, at the same time purchasing heavy quantities of farmer-owned wood.

The investigation is necessary either to prove or disprove the charges made by Fulmer and others. If the charges are proved, then remedial action should immediately be taken. If they are not, then the atmosphere, which is one of growing suspicion, will have been cleared.

The forest resources of the south are too valuable to be destroyed in the manner of the hardwood stands. Of course, mills cannot be blamed for the destruction of farmer-owned forest under a conception of ownership which gives each man the right to preserve or destroy the natural forest wealth at will. It is probable there the matter should be attacked, except of course that the farmer is entitled to a fair price for the wood, a standard which is determined largely by supply and demand.

It is only natural that the growth of a new industry in the south will produce various stresses which need analysis. This investigation by congressional factors of forest use and wood prices will have the effect of throwing the spotlight upon conditions and practices of which the general public knows little. If fairly conducted, and there is no doubt but that it will be under the direction of Mr. Fulmer, it will be healthy both for the mills and for the farmer, who too often is inclined to rip from the earth the wealth which is part of the heritage of all the people.

The conservation of southern forest resources will become more and more of a pressing problem in the years to come, and it is not something to be left to individual whim.

Potential Strength

There is a tremendous potentiality for effective service on behalf of the residents of Fulton and DeKalb counties in the new Inter-Civic Council, formally organized on Thursday

Representatives from 21 neighborhood civic clubs took part in the organization. The combined influence of so many community groups of progressive citizens, if properly exerted and for the right causes, cannot be valuated...

The smaller civic clubs of the Atlanta area have for long been important contributors to the advancement and best welfare of their own communities. Hardly a one which cannot boast of more than one important achievement that has made life better in its own environment.

There are, however, projects of more than neighborhood importance which deserve and need the backing of citizens of all sections. A project may be, as to actual site, the immediate concern of a comparative small neighborhood yet, in its proposed service, of vital importance to every one living in either county.

It is to push such projects to realization that the Inter-Civic Council has been formed. It is the intention of its leaders and members to stay absolutely aloof from politics, per se, but there can be no doubt that the voting strength represented by the organization will be a powerful factor when governmental authorities are requested to consider anything the council may

The future course of the Inter-Civic Council will be followed with deep interest by all citizens of the two counties who are interested in the better development and public improvement of their surroundings.

Editorial of the Day

WHO IS LABOR?

(From The Charleston News & Courier) What is "labor"? The News and Courier confesses that it is in need of a definition of this mmon word.

The other day Mr. James Reaves, of Alcolu, mentioned that a negro was operating a shop for the repair of automobiles on the Paxville road, the negro, presumably, owning the shop. He is an automobile mechanic. He works with his hands. Is he a laborer or a capitalist, an employer or an employe, or both?

In South Carolina are tens of thousands of men working on farms which they own. Some of them perform all their labor; others have a sharecropper. Many of them are white men, and their properties or equities in them are worth $2,000 $5,000. Their hours of labor are not limited they do not pay themselves daily or weekly wages; they are not unionized. Raising asparagus, pecans, corn, cotton, strawberries, chickens, their interest is to sell those products at the high est prices they can obtain; it is identical with the interest of a neighbor owning 1,000 acres and employing 30 farmers or wage hands. The better the prices they get the more the "industrial la-will pay. Who speaks for "labor" in South Carolina? Who can or would say that the unorganized worker is no worker, or at any rate, not entitled to a voice as a laborer?

When does a laboring man cease to be a la-boring man? Has salary anything to do with it? In the United States are men and women in or-ganized labor whose salaries are far greater than the salaries of bankers in South Carolina. They may be found in Hollywood, or in the music and art circles of any great city. Some of the columnists, in our business, receiving three or five times as much as any editor in South Carolina,

The News and Courier suspects that the great nderance of labor done with hands in this state is done by persons, men and women, who have no voice in legislation relating to labor.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

NEW GERMAN PLANES WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—Reports on the new German fighter planes are causing serious concern among military experts here. Of Messer-schmidts design, they combine cruising radius sufficient to strike at Of Youth. A person wants to be careful not to any point in the British Isles with high maneuverability and a speed of 360 miles per hour, twin-engined, carrying a crew of two, armed with two machine guns and a small cannon, they are so formidable that they are often given the novel name of "destroyers."

The best information is that they are superior to the pursuit ships in use by the Allies, and only equaled by the latest American models. Even the best information cannot, of course, be depended upon until tested in actual combat. If the new Messerschmidts live up to advance notices, however, they may have great significance.

After exhausting all other explanations, expert opinion now is that German mass air attacks have been so long delayed for lack of a fighter plane with sufficient range to accompany bombers. small, tentative German raids in the fall proved that without the protection of fighters, bombing planes were too much at the mercy of enemy pursuit ships. The Messerschmidts were designed to meet If they have the range, the speed and the maneuverability attributed to them, the big air raids so widely predicted for the spring may prove downright disastrous.

The chief point watched by the experts will be the effectiveness of the spring raids against the shipping convoys on which the British Isles depend for food and supplies. Recent attacks on shipping have not been a good test, since they occurred in the narrow, crowded sealane inside the huge mine-field protecting England's whole North sea coast. If air raids on shipping prove dangerous, convoys will be largely re-routed, to come in on the other side of England. Both the Messerschmidts and the German bombers will then need all of cruising radius they have, for they will be forced to fly far further than for a North sea raid, and will have to find convoys to oomb when they reach their objective.

Meanwhile, the reports on the Messerschmidts are paralleled by reports of opposite effect, that German production of high octane airplane gasoline has proved inadequate. The Germans cannot obtain this type of gasoline in Russia or Rumania, and if home production has fallen down, mass air attacks of the sort now feared would exhaust vital air gasoline reserves.

THE STATEMENT The convergence on Washington of the 96 Democratic national committeemen and committeewomen has revived talk of a presidential statement on the third-term question. It is said that the visiting politicos will want to know the President's intentions and have a right to.

General expectation of a statement of this sort has been aroused before. There is no special reason to believe that the President will speak his mind now rather than later. But it can be said on authentic information that the President has been hinting for a long time that he might speak. Last summer, he told one man, in categorical terms, that he would do so. Despite all that has hap-pened during the last fortnight he twice dropped broad hints to the same effect to political visitors. Signs of this sort are one of the reasons why so many leading Democrats believe the President does not intend to run.

THINKERS' THOUGHT The government economists are at it again. They have just revised their forecasts for the third time this winter, and are now predicting a gradual decline of business until next April. In April, they expect the Federal Reserve Board index to stand at around 110, or about 15 points below the level of the end of January. As they have changed their minds so often, it is tempting to ignore the forecasts. But as one of the most influential pointed out, "This is the first time in my memory that the government men and the big business economists have been in agreement." Perhaps when all the thinkers simultaneously share a thought, the thought may be taken as of course publishes those things said in support of his administration. And he finds, contrary to the belief of some, not a little support. The political trade papers flourish usually throughout the campaigns and then disappear. They carry letters from the readers, an excellent idea proved by test. They enable their partisans to put down their innermost thoughts about their chief and his opponents. Mr. Talmadge's paper is different in that it keeps going on after

Mr. Rivers, who is in his second term,

We call this a scientific age, and the literate reject ideas that the answers to these questions which are vital to our common In the last few years, sociologists and earnest citizens have frequently reminded us that our well-to-do and rich people are deliberately limiting the size of their families, while the poor and the destitute multiply without ceasing. From this they conclude that the country is going to the dogs, their assumption being that the prosperous who have few children are the "best people," the prolific poor are low-grade stock that will do the country more harm than good. This assumption is rather astonishing to a generation taught to regard the rags-to-riches saga as the glory of America. For a century or more our young people have been inspired by true stories of the great and successful men who rose from dire poverty.

There was a time when birth in a log cabin was one of the qualifications for the presidency. And there was a general belief that poverty and its hardships developed character and virtue and wisdom not otherwise acquired. Yet now we are warned that the country is endangered because the poor are having most of the children. We are doomed unless our "better" people become more prolific.

What is the truth? Who has any evidence except his own opinion? There was a time when the poor were a distinct class, without schooling, speaking a distinct dialect. Nobody was offended by the implication in the common phrase, "poor but honest." even now it is obvious that many are poor because they were born with poor minds. And it is conceded that the poverty and squalor of some sections predispose children to crime and denies them opportunity to develop as they might in a different environment. But some poor children do rise to the top. Do the others, who are mentally normal, fail to rise wholly because they are poor? It will take ten thousand case histories of rich and poor, covering the span of a generation, to establish the truth

PART-YEAR PLAN

Course Is Studied in Effort To Avoid More Tax or Raising National Debt Limit This Year.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—(AP)— Legislative leaders, it was disclosed today, are discussing the possibility of making only a partyear appropriation for relief in an effort to avoid raising taxes or increasing the national debt in this session of congress.

Senator Byrnes, Democrat, South Carolina, an administration strategist, said it appeared likely to him that congress might fall ack on some such solution of its financial problems.

To accomplish this, Byrnes said, congress would have to cut from $200,000,000 to $300,000,000 off President Roosevelt's estimates of expenditures for other purposes. Since the President said in his budget message that the treasury could stay within the debt limit by a margin of $62,000,000 if an additional $460,000,000 in taxes were levied, a congressional cut of $300,000,000 in prospective expenditures would leave only $100 .-000,000 to be raised by taxes or

Faced with such a situation, Byrnes said it was his judgment that there would be strong sentiment for a part-year appropriation of possibly $750,000,000 for WPA instead of the approximately $1,000,000,000 recommended by the President for the full year. Such a part-year appropriation percentage of the total appropria-would permit congress to end think too, as is done now. session well within the debt limit

B. Q. R.—The Fighting Cold Relief

Vols Lead S. E. C. Cage Race With Four Wins, One Defeat

SUMTER, S. C., Feb. 4.—There have been a lot of excuses made, from time to time, by fellows who insist on doing things contrary to what the law says, but one of the best of all time undoubtedly is the alibi offered recently by the hunters caught shooting over a baited field near Dublin, Ga.

Out there in the snowy cornfield they insisted that the cracked wheat and corn had been distributed to feed the hogs.

What puzzled rangers, of course, was the absence of hogs. All they could detect, it seems, was game hogs. The cracked wheat and corn excuse does not stand alone as a blue-ribbon winner, however, for not so very long ago a politician and his friends came up with one that is just about equal to it.

When the rangers swarmed in and caught them red-handed on the baited field, they set out to be very convincing.

"You have us all wrong," said the spokesman for the group, "we are not here as hunters, although we do have guns in our hands. Look at our bags. There are no

"Here's what really happened. We put out feed for the birds, yes. But the report came to us that a bunch of fellows were out here shooting the birds.

"Well, we weren't going to stand for that, so we got our guns and came out here and chased them away. I don't guess we were thinking when we brought the game

Some headway to cut down on baited field dove shoots in Georgia has been made, but the wild life rangers still have a long way to go. It really will take years to do any real good.

"TOOK THE TIRE OFF"

This city fellow occasionally would take time off and slip down into the country to hunt with an old friend.

They had gone out at daybreak, as usual, and along about noon the city man had worked down in the bottom where a covey of birds usually was to be found at that time of day

He missed his country friend and finally spotted him working around in the brush up on a hillside. He thought this very strange and went on up there.

"F-f-f-friend," stuttered the countryman, "I-I don't know how your w-women folks are, but mine don't like for me to keep anything around the house. I-I thought you might like to join me before lunch. Whereupon he reached down behind a bush in the brush

"I-I find along about this time of day," he added," that it sorta takes the tire off."

THE HORSE WAS WEARING CHIFFON

And there was the story of the general—the name escapes ho took his wife to the horse show,

A portable bar had been set up in a car back of the box seats and the general, eyeing a beauteous eyefull at the bar, excused himself. Well, he was away quite a lengthy time.

And upon returning the general's wife asked him where he had been.

"I see," he responded, "I have been back to see about old Champion. You know, he is going to be in the jumping events. "I see," responded the general's wife, "and since when did Champion start wearing chiffon?'

Boston Manager To Break Precedent in This Year's Game.

BOSTON, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Joe Cronin, Boston Red Sox manager, who has been named to lead the American league entry in this year's All-Star game, said he would break with precedent by giving every player chosen for the 'dream team" a chance to get into the lineup.

"In other years," Cronin said, "the idea has been to win the game and defeat the team of the rival league. That meant the manager would start his strongest possible lineup and keep it intact as long as possible.

"As a result, those players who were chosen for the team but did not get into the lineup, and their supporters among the fans, were inclined to resent it. I think it's fairer to the players and the fans to use every man who is chosen for the All-Star team."

This Foundation Cream Not Only Beautifies But Benefits the Skins

Make-Up Cream Is All-Purpose Beauty Aid

By Lillian Mae.

In England it was acclaimed as the perfect beauty aid, especially for fine sensitive skins. In Australia it won a battle for complex-ions against sun and wind. In France, Spain and Italy, where oily skins are prevalent, women reported that they never had to worry about a shiny nose or repeated powderings when they wore this remarkable makeup

But I wondered what it would do for my own contrary type of complexion. So, when in New York last week, I hied me to the salon of the firm which manufac-tures it, and had a facial, in which this wonder foundation cream was used. Well, it did for me just what I wished. I found that it blends into the skin with amazing ease, is taken up by the complexion which immediately takes on a soft glow and transparency, a velvety texture and a luminous

It conceals blemishes and fatigue—and I was plenty fatigued traipsying around New York for three days—and helps to correct lines, dryness and a parched, drawn look the whole day through, keeping the skin soft, smooth and supple all the while. It also protects from drying wintry weather and artificial heat. But the manufacturer was not content with the first presentation of the cream. She wished it to star under hot, drying lights on the set, outdoors sports-loving women, young debutantes and the young school girl on a budget as well, so she is now presenting this superb all-purpose foundation cream in a new size.

If you, like I, prefer to use a cream to decide upon its merits before purchasing a large jar, get the new small size of this perfect. will not only beautify your complexion, but which will benefit it as well. It is of a luscious, creamy consistency unlike the old-fashioned coating types which were drying and coarsening. Phone me and I'll tell you the name of the cream and the stores at which it may be purchased. If you do not live in Atlanta, write, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for realy.

Alice looks cute in a waspwaisted, black velvet gown, her hair piled high in a pompadour— the hair is partly her own, partly phony. "I'd be flattered if you said I looked like Miss Russell," says Alice, who is another modest movieite. "I wish I were as pop-ular as she was," Alice continues. To Lend Boy Money

By Caroline Chatfield.

Two letters in one mail from foolish females who lent money to boy friends. One of them says she doesn't mind losing the money if only she can get back the boy friend. The other says she doesn't mind losing the boy friend if only she can get back her cash. Of course everybody knows (but the two foolish virgins) that neither of them will get back either cash, or boy friend. And everybody knows that such boy friends aren't worth fighting for. In which event these two damsels will do well to mark off the loans as bad debts and profit by the experience which is more than most people do in the matter of unwise investments

There's a queer thing: that love and money won't mix before marriage and the gal who tries it wrecks her romance. Yet if love and money aren't mixed in proper proportions after marriage, the marriage is

It's difficult to explain. You'd think wouldn't you, that when a man's in a jam, nowhere to turn and his best gal steps up to get him out of the jam, you'd think that he would love her all the more for such evidence of faith in him and affection for him You'd think he would feel a deep sense of gratitude to her and go his whole length to express it, to say nothing of paying off the loan as fast as possible.

On the contrary, the sense of obligation irks him. He begins to shy away from the reminder of his humiliation and in less time than it takes to count interest due, his interest in the girl has cooled. Even when he has common honesty to pay his debt, he doesn't overcome the feeling of inferiority, (borrower-servant-to-lender idea) which is when he touches his girl friend or a loan, the minute he knows is supposed to begin.

There are, of course, a certain percentage of deaths that are accidents, such as infections like for a loan, the minute he knows is supposed to begin.

that he's presenting a sorry spectacle to her, he's finished with her and off to find another girl that can look up to him for a look up to him little while.

The result must be that an interview with the press any-where is more or less a battle of wits in which she must be careful to say nothing which might seem to suggest that she is trying to influence or criticize anything in this country while we are offering her our hospitality. I have spent a frivolous morning here trying on two Easter dresses and ordering a new knit fabric dress which my friend, Mrs. June Hamilton Rhodes, recommended because she said I could travel a long time in it, roll it into a ball if necessary and have it come out uncreased. Atlanta's First Mardi Gras Ball Wins First Prize

By Sally Forth. SALLY'S snooping for descriptions of the elaborate costumes to appear at the Mardi Gras ball to be held tomorrow evening at the Driving Club was almost thwarted when socialites answered her questions with the repeated exclamation, "Oh, my costume is a secret!" The ball, you know, will be a masquerade affair sponsored by the Rabun Gap-Nacoochee Junior Guild, and many of Atlanta's carnival enthusiasts do not wish to be recognized from previous descriptions

However, a few were cheerfully accommodating on this score, and thus Sally learned that Maibelle Dickey will represent that familiar heroine of Mother Goose tales, "Gretchen," on tomorrow's brilliant occasion. A "Winter Arrangement" of beechleaves, laurel and pine cones, created by Mrs. Jesse Draper, of he Peachtree Garden Club, won 98 points and first prize in the garden club competition during January at the Garden Center. Mrs. Dan Byrd, of the Druid Hills Garden Club, scored 96 points for second place for a console grouping; the mellow brass pitcher of artemesia and helichrysum was placed in front of an old brass ray, with a small bowl for an occessory. Third place was won by the Magnolia Garden Club for distinctive arrangement of dried ucumber magnolia leaves entered by Mrs. George L. Pratt.

Other entries in this competi-tion were by Mrs. J. D. Lowndes, of the Linwood Garden Club, who filled a blue luster teapot with flowering pink begonia blossoms. For the Kirkwood Civic League, Mrs. J. M. McKinney chose a dull pottery vase to hold a mixed grouping of berries and foliage. The exhibit of the Azalea Garden Club in the niche was unusual. The five bamboo holders, fashioned from sections of bamand were placed on a bamboo mat. An arrangement in the Japanese manner was displayed by William McBurney for the Rose Garden Club. A pewter leaf placed on a polished slab held a branch of wild plum with a rosy camellia and waxy leaves tered at the base. The East Point Garden Division was represented by Mrs. Lawrence Willis, who chose an unglazed pitcher for a nixed bouquet of dried material with dainty colorings.

Owners of these securities must make up their minds whether they wish to deposit them (time for which has been extended to 3:30 p.m., Wednesday, February 14) or sell them for cash. The unification plan, although accepted by 80% of the holders of the above securities is in danger of failure. Consider what your securities will be worth if that happens. Quick action is necessary.

Unless offerings are made at prices which the City regards as advantageous to it, they will not be accepted. Furthermore NO TENDERS WILL BE ACCEPTED UNLESS THE TOTAL AMOUNT IS SUFFICIENT TO ACHIEVE THE CONSUMMATION OF THE B. M. T.

UNIFICATION PLAN. Obviously, offers which are made at prices substantially lower than those fixed in the Plan will stand the best chance of being accepted. Any and all offers may be rejected.

This is an opportunity for owners who want their money now, and do not want to wait until the Plan is consummated. THIS OFFER DOES NOT APPLY TO CERTIFICATES OF DEPOSIT—it applies only to securities which have not been deposited under the Plan.

All offers must be made on approved offering forms and submitted not later than 3:30 p. m., Wednesday, February 14, 1940. On February 16, the City, by letter or telegram, will notify owners of its acceptance or rejection of their offers. Payment will be made by the City in cash on February 23, 1940.

Full information, the necessary forms for submitting offers, and complete instructions for depositing securities under the Plan, can be obtained by addressing or calling in person at Room 729, Municipal Building (or 'phone WOrth 2-1200, Ext. 48), New York City, or inquire at your local bank in order to arrange for submitting tenders on the proper forms.

Kiss for the Queen

SMACK! Just like that, with aplomb, nonchalance and recklessness, young John Virgil Dugan III steals a bit of a kiss from her majesty the queen, Jearnine Wagner, who reigned at the Children's Mardi Gras pageant way down yonder in New Orleans. But then, Johnny was King of the Krewe at the Ball. (AP photo).

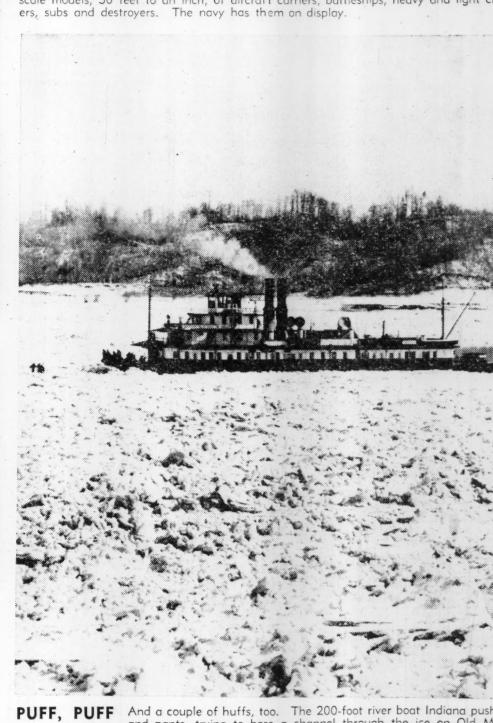

PEACEMAKER John Barrymore, the peacemaker, soothes Doris Dudley (left) and Elaine Barrie, after their word battle as to whom will be spanked. Doris replaced Elaine when she left the play and her husband. Now, after reconciliation, Doris may be replaced with Elaine back on Barrymore's knee.

MILK MAN What, no horse and wagon? Nope, the Swede, right, uses a bicycle. He's just about to cross the border into Tornio, Finland, with cans of milk for the Finnish fighters.

THE FLEET'S IN That is, in miniature. It's the work of Charles Gunther, Richmond Hill, N. Y., on exhibition in Washington. These are scale models, 50 feet to an inch, of aircraft carriers, battleships, heavy and light cruisers, subs and destroyers. The navy has them on display.

PUFF, PUFF And a couple of huffs, too. The 200-foot river boat Indiana pushes and pants, trying to bore a channel through the ice on Old Man River's whiskers, at Butler's Landing, Ark. The Indiana and 13 barges were forced to tie up and wait for the frozen Mississippi to break up.

GLAMOR And how! They're the nation's glamor debs, with New York excluded. They're "queens of the crop" in seven major cities of the U., S.

FIRST JOBS In a work-or-wedlock poll among these charmers, the career girls won, four to three. First they want jobs, they voted emphatically.

VARIETY As for the jobs these beauties seek, that's something else again. It ranges from model to school teacher to laboratory technician.

AND THEN The men get a break. All seven expect to marry, the poll disclosed. So, when party days are o'er, it's ho for home and such.
